

National Center for Faculty Development & Diversity

UC Berkeley has an institutional membership with the National Center for Faculty Development and Diversity (NCFDD), an independent organization dedicated to helping faculty increase productivity, maintain work-family balance, and create broad networks of collegial support. They offer online training workshops, leadership development programs, and individual coaching.

Professional development training focused on increasing productivity

Reliable support networks of highly trained and successful mentors

Confidential "safe space" for brainstorming and problem-solving

New members can register for access to the NCFDD resources at www.FacultyDiversity.org/Berkeley

All UC Berkeley faculty have access to the following resources at no cost:

- Weekly Monday Motivator email
- Monthly core curriculum webinars
- Monthly guest expert webinars
- Access to multi-week courses
- Private discussion forum for peer-mentoring & problem-solving
- Monthly accountability buddy matches
- Moderated monthly writing challenges
- Access to the member library that includes past webinar materials, referrals, and readings

Faculty Success Program:

The NCFDD offers a 12-week bootcamp for an additional cost. For more information visit www.FacultyDiversity.org.

UC Berkeley Faculty Testimonials

"The NCFDD Faculty Success Program taught me vital skills that I needed to transition to a successful faculty member. During the program, my research productivity and work-life balance both increased, and I learned to manage the pressure of my job better. I still use the tools and techniques I learned through the NCFDD, and now teach them to my trainees."

-Assistant Professor, Biological Sciences

"My biggest challenge is balancing my desire to be a great teacher with meeting the research requirements for tenure. NCFDD didn't totally solve this tension, but it did give me practical tools to be more productive and to hold myself accountable to my writing goals. It also helped to hear from others who struggle with this same balance—I really appreciated being part of a larger faculty community."

-Assistant Professor, College of Envir. Design
